

Taupo-nui-a-Tia College Homestay Family Guidelines

Hosting an international student is a rewarding and enjoyable experience for families. This booklet details what is expected of you as the host family and what you can expect from your student. Be aware that these are just guidelines and no rules. We appreciate that every household is ran differently. We are not here to micromanage, but we are here to support you. This booklet will give you some ideas how you could manage difficult situations as well as prepare for unfamiliar situation.

On arrival

When you first meet your student, be open and direct with them. Encourage them to talk about their family, country and schooling. Discuss any cultural differences with them. Encourage them to make new friends by joining sports teams, cultural groups, community groups or pursuing hobbies etc.

Early days

We will contact you in the first few weeks to ensure everything is OK and to answer any questions or concerns you may have. It often takes two to four weeks for everyone to settle into new daily routines.

Your student is likely to experience culture shock which can last a matter of days or up to three months. Please be patient with your student.

Your student will be given an orientation and introductory booklet. It is a good idea for you to sit down with them in the first few days and go through this. Keep it simple when talking with your student. You may have to speak slowly and repeat yourself several times. Sometimes it helps to write it down. (Most students have a digital dictionary or translator).

Payments

We pay by direct credit on a Friday.

You will need to provide details of your bank account and keep us updated of any changes.

Please DO NOT enter direct payment situations, lend money or act as guarantor for the student.

What the homestay payment covers:

- Single furnished room, bedding, desk, wardrobe or chest of draws, reading light, towels and a facecloth.
- Bathroom (shared or private)
- All food for the day, inclusive some snacks
- Laundry services
- Transport to activities, within reason.
- Basic toiletries (soap, toilet paper). The student is responsible for all personal toiletries including toothpaste, toothbrushes, shampoo etc.

Holiday arrangements

Please inform us if you or your student is going away. While they are at secondary school no student can stay by themselves overnight without adult supervision. We are able to help with temporary homestay families in case you are going away for a holiday break. If you are going away for the night and you wont be able to take the student, try to arrange a sleep over with a friend.

If the student is away for a week or longer, we ask you to give the student $125 per week from the weekly homestay fees as you will not be providing meals during this time.

Damage, unpaid bills

Normal wear and tear is inevitable. Please contact us if you are in doubt.

We advise you to tell your insurance company that you are hosting international students so your coverage is adequate.

Telephone

Most students now use their own phone to call with home. Please check that they have one and that they are not charging calls to your phone. Discuss the time difference with your student and come to an arrangement for making and receiving calls that you can both live with; for example, no calls in after 9.30/10.00pm.

Internet

Students are expecting to have access to wireless broadband for their computer or smart phone. The majority of students have their own laptops and we recommend that you do not let them use your computer. We recommend that there is no internet use after 10.00pm on a school night. Please inform us if excessive internet use becomes a problem.

Going out

Our expectation is that you treat the student as you would expect your own child to be treated if the roles were reversed. Be clear about your expectations of what time a student needs to be home for dinner. Ask your student to leave a contact name and number with you and an estimated time of return.

Please ensure the student can get home safely from any after-school activities. Clear communication about what you can and cannot offer is the key to a smooth stay. You must know where your student is at all times. Ask your student for their mobile number and give them yours. If they want to attend a party, please ask for the phone number of the parents hosting the party and contact them in advance. International students are not supposed to drink alcohol.

Student responsibilities

Students are expected to help in the following ways:

- Tidying their room and making their bed
- Helping with minor chores such as setting and clearing the dinner table, and doing the dishes after meals.

Be clear from the very beginning of what you expect from them to do (laundry, toiletries, dirty sheets etc).

Participation in family life

Try to make sure that the student doesn't just live in their room. Invite the student to join in family activities. A student could pay their own way on outings with the family (for example trips to the cinema, etc.) unless you choose otherwise. Willingness to join in with the family varies from student to student. Encouragement is the key.

Students must ask your permission before they invite a friend over or to stay the night.

General guidelines as to who pays for what:

Generally:

1. Anything you do with your family and student e.g. dinner, take aways etc = family pays
2. Anything the student does by themselves, eg movies with friends = the student pays
3. If your students wants something different from the grocery shopping or there is something they eat a lot of: the student pays for extras
4. If you take a holiday or a trip, talk with your student if you would like them to contribute to the costs.

Culture shock

After the initial period of euphoria and excitement at being in New Zealand and having some independence for the first time, many students experience a period of culture shock.

Life in New Zealand may be very different from what the student is used to and coupled with a natural feeling of homesickness, students may experience difficulties in adjusting. They can become introverted, avoiding contact with you and can appear to reject the host family.

For some students this period of culture shock lasts for a few days or sometimes weeks. Others will experience cycles of culture shock with several highs and lows.

If you suspect that your student is experiencing culture shock then try to provide moral support, offering reassurance and a willingness to listen. Ongoing communication is very important. Contact us for support and advice too.

Ultimately most students will adjust in time; however, it is the student's responsibility to fit into the host family and New Zealand's culture and not the other way round.

We are here to support you so contact us if you have any concerns about your student.

Food/meals

Take the time to instruct your student what you expect him to do regards food preparations and clean up afterwards. Be clear about mealtimes reminding them what the expectations are for the family.

Find out what foods they prefer and what they can't eat for religious, cultural or medical reasons as we are not always informed of special food requirements. If this becomes an issue, please let us know.

Insist that your student notifies you if they are not going to be home for family meals. Have a time set that your student has to phone in by e.g. 4pm, especially on the weekend.

It's also a good idea to take your student food shopping a few times when they first arrive. They will recognise things that they like.

Health

All students have medical insurance. A copy of their insurance certificate should be taken with them to any medical appointments so claims can be made straight away.

Some students will bring numerous vitamins and medicines from their home country. Be careful recommending medicines – there may be risks if students mix traditional and Western medication.

The school has access to a nurse for non-urgent conditions. Usually the student will refer themselves to this service. The school also has available a trained full-time Guidance Counsellor for any students who are sad or homesick.

Smoking

It is illegal in New Zealand to sell cigarettes and tobacco products to anyone aged under 18. If a student does smoke, please let us know so that we can work with the school and help the student to quit.

Drinking/drugs

Drinking alcohol under the age of 18 is illegal in the absence of parental guardians in New Zealand. Drug-taking is also illegal. In the unlikely event that drugs and alcohol are issues please inform us.

Bathroom

Bathroom and toilet habits can be very different. Some cultures stand on the toilet seat for hygiene rather than sit and in some countries toilet paper is not flushed as their systems are unable to cope. Women from many other cultures do not use tampons. Clearly explain your disposal system for used sanitary items. Be upfront about what's expected.

Don't take it for granted that they know what to do.

Showering

Show them how to use the shower and where to put their towels. Long showers are common. When the student first arrives, explain that you wish them if you have a set time limit for all family members.

Bedrooms/bedding

Your student may not be familiar with how to use a bed. Some students come from hot countries where sheets and blankets are not used. Others are used to futon mats on the floor. Show your student the sheets/blankets/duvet – pull the bed open and show them how to get in.

Help them when changing the sheets and pillowcases for the first few times.

Heating

Students from tropical countries may feel very cold in New Zealand. Advise them to wear more underclothes and wool jumpers in preference to sweatshirts. In the winter encourage your student to join the family in the living room where it will be warm for at least part of every evening. Have extra bedding and a hot water bottle available (remember to show them where to find and how to use the hot water bottle). Teach them how to turn on and off heaters.

Transport

We ask that you take your student to and from school on the first day. Please help your student familiarise themselves with the buses if they are going to be used. Obtain a timetable from the bus company and ensure they understand it. The school will provide the student with a (school) bus pass.

Moving on

Sometimes things just don't work out. Please don't give up or feel hurt if we move a student. It is always better to part on friendly terms. We try to give two weeks' notice when we move a student, but sometimes this is not possible.

Being part of the homestay parents' community

During our information night for new homestay parents, you will get the opportunity to meet and greet with other parents. This can be a very useful experience, because in many cases international students become friends. If you allow us we will add you also to a Whatsapp group with other homestay parents. This simplifies the communication as well as gives you an option to ask questions in this group.

Contacting us

We are here to assist you so please notify us immediately if there is a conflict or difficulty between you and the student. Every effort will be made to resolve the situation. For urgent questions or emergencies we are offering a 24/7 assistance through an 0800 number. Please add to your phone the following number for emergencies or urgent matters:

Suggestions for those first few days

Please spend some time each evening in the student's first week going through these questions with them. If their English is good enough you should give the question sheet to the student and let them ask you the questions, if not then use the questions as discussion points and work through them. Aim to work through one section each night.
